However, classical physics led to the

Rayleighâ€™s Jeans law, which, as shown in the figure, agrees with experimental results well at low frequencies, but strongly disagrees at high frequencies. Physicists searched for a single theory that explained all the experimental results. Thu, 18 Apr 2019 08:44:00 GMT David Tong -- Cambridge Lecture Notes on String Theory - In some cases  $p_c$  may be calculated explicitly. For example, for the square lattice  $\hat{z}, \hat{x}^2$  in two dimensions,  $p_c = 1/2$  for bond percolation, a fact which was an open question for more than 20 years and was finally resolved by Harry Kesten in the early 1980s, see Kesten (1982). A limit case for lattices in many dimensions is given by the Bethe lattice, whose threshold is at  $p_c = 1/z \hat{z}$
